Some Mystery, This

There is mystery all around us. Nature is full of this mysterious something. Then, again, take a string of sausage—there you have a bag of mystery of another kind. But the mystery of the cook kar, and who oiled the cat, knocks the stuffing out of 'em all. Rearville is not by any means in the rear with a mystery, all its own.

Might Have Been Very Serious

Rearville came very near having a very disastrous prairie fire last week, that might have wiped many of its farm houses and crops into smoke. A burning stack got away from one of our farmers during one of those strong winds and spread with great rapidity among the grass and stubble, requiring the services of some 20 30 farmers with teams and plows before it was stopped. One cannot be too careful these windy days. Now that the presidential election is over across the line the wind may not be so strong.

What Kind of Microbe, This?

Rearville is determined to keep on the map—and in the lime-light, too. Epidemics of one sort and another have broken out in divers and sundry places. Rearville, not to be amongst the lonesomes, is experiencing a peculiar but at the same time a very old kind of an epidemic that is playing havoc under the fifth rib of some of our lonely bachelors and fair maidens. Whoever is responsible in bringing in and spreading this epidemic, in our otherwise peaceful hamlet, certain it is that quite a number have come in touch with its far-reaching effects, and into whose calm and uneven life it may come next no one knows. The microbes find a ready response on the lips—and the heart is also a danger spot; and the head, well, it's all up when the microbe gets there. Two or three marriages have been the results of this epidemic—with more to follow. Oh, the giddy young things!

Important Legal Case

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

An important case was decided in the supreme civil court at Calgary last week, before Mr. Justice Simmons, which has far-reaching effects to farmers, and settles a very vexed question.

The plaintiff in the case is the Calgary Grain Company, and the defendant is one Keller, a farmer.

The plaintiffs claimed that during the threshing season of 1915 they had purchased 5,000 bushels of wheat from the defendant, a Craigmyle farmer. The price was stipulated at 84¼ cents a bushel and the grain was to be delivered on December 31st last.

A contract was signed to the effect that if delivery was not made on that date the defendant was to reimburse the plaintiffs for the advance, that might be made in the price of grain. Grain advanced to $1.15 on the date upon which delivery was specified and delivery was not made. The plaintiffs accordingly sued for $1,537.50.

The defence was to the effect that the defendant, an illiterate man, had not understood the contract as drawn.

In charging the jury his lordship instructed them that they were to find for the plaintiffs if they believed that there was a contract, but if they did not believe there was a contract they were to find for the defendant. In the latter case the jury was to say why they found there was no contract. They returned a verdict that there was no contract and gave as their reason the fact that they did not believe that the minds of the two parties had met

Got the Wrong Bull

BY THE HORNS

OR THE SERENADERS' LAMENT IN MINOR KEY

A bunch of musicians with tin cans, cymbals, lute, and harp, paid a nautical serenade to one of our newly-married couples one night last week. After tooting off some of Harry Lauder's and Sausa's latest gems, the serenaders discovered that they had wasted their talents upon a confirmed old bachelor, the only occupant of the house, the newly married couple being out joy riding in one of Ford's 1917 cars. ? ! ! ? — ! !

We didn't hear what else was said.

But just as the serenaders were about to gracefully retire, up drives the cooing young couple. Explanations and apologies ensued, cigars handed around, and the affair ended up in smoke.

But, say, won't that old bachelor "get his" when his turn comes

H. Connah

GETS AN ARM BROKEN

H. Connah met with a painful accident on Thursday of last week, while working around a separator, which was in motion. He was in the act of tightening up a boxing, when the sleeve of his coat was caught in the belting of the pulley underneath, dragging his arm in under and jamming it on the side of the elevator. The swiftly running belting burnt the flesh to the bone, but he was not aware that a bone was broken until he came to Chinook to have his injuries attended to. This was the second accident that occurred around here last week while working about separators while in motion. "Safety first" always pays best in the long run, although it may take but a few minutes' time to stop the machinery, while the slight repairs are being adjusted.

Both Hughes and Wilson are now claiming a victory, so close is the election, as the returns are coming in.

PLANS FOR PLACING IMMIGRANTS ON THE LAND AFTER THE WAR

BETTER MANAGEMENT OF IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

Lord Shaughnessy Says That There Must Be a Selection of the Desired Classes and a Refusal to Accept Any and Every Settler Who Might Offer to Come to Canada

Lord Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, after returning from a prolonged tour of inspection of the company's system in the West, gave a most cheering report on conditions in the four Western Provinces.

Being asked about immigration after the war, His Lordship made several important points. In the first place, he said that even if there was a movement toward Canada immediately after the war, it could not be handled, since it would mean considerable time to get the troops back and there would be a great deal of preliminary adjustment in Europe. In the second place, he said that after the war there ought to be a much more thorough administration of the immigration problem.

He said that in addition to dealing in a better way with the immigrant after he reached the country, there must be perfect supervision at the point of entry. There must be a selection of the desired classes, and refusal to accept any and every settler who might offer to come to Canada.

In the third place, His Lordship said that after the war every means would be used to present the advantages of Canada to the intending settlers and to all the people who might wish to make new homes in new countries.

The Canadian Pacific would continue to make every effort to aid these settlers after they reached the Dominion. He expected that the policy of the railway-made would be continued, but he thought that instead of building houses, immigrants might be furnished with a small cottage for buildings at the lowest possible prices and be allowed to construct their own buildings, thus reducing the cost and affording the newcomers employment for the first months of their residence in the Dominion.

"We have no mandate, I doubt with reference to the future of Canada after the war," said His Lordship. "In a course of a year or two, we should be a satisfactory immigration from Europe, and the development of the country will continue and go forward as rapidly as is desirable."

He fully demonstrated its productive capacity, and in the course of a few years, if we do not have the equal of any country in the world. With reference to the Western Provinces, I would say that I have never wandered in any fields in them."

City of Kiev is a Russian Gem

Considered the Most Desirable of All Russian Cities in Which to Reside

When first I travelled, years ago, through Russia, I thought Kiev the best city in the empire. I am here now, the third time, and I am sure that my earlier impression remains; has, indeed, been strengthened. If I were obliged to live anywhere in Russia, I would live in Kiev. Its attractions are vouchsafed for by the large number of "retired" people, soldiers and officers, who go thither to end their days.

Although it is in the south of Russia, its climate is severe, and it has a long and hard winter. Yet it has most of the features which we associate with a city of the north. From May to September it grows for itself the lilies and violets, the roses and carnations which are the pride of Polish gardeners' hot-houses and from Nice.

Next, Kiev is a city of spacious green. The streets are broad. The shops are handsome and display their wares far more attractively than those of Petersburg. There are wide, shady boulevards where the sunshine filters through the leafage of elm and poplar and spruce chestnut. Life in the cafes is genial, brisk. The women are pretty. The men's faces suggest intelligence. One notices immediately that Kiev is a "dressy" place. Not over-dress, but with a suggestion of Parisian style, Parisian surcease.

In Petrograd one feels that the inhabitants do not enjoy life. In Moscow they enjoy eating and drinking. In Kiev they enjoy everything—or, at any rate, they look as if they did. A Belgian officer with whom I fell into talk at a restaurant praised the trimness and gaiety of the place. "Ca commence un peu à ressembler à Bruxelles," he said, with a homesick sigh.—London Daily Mail.

Kitchener's Sound Vision

Kitchener had to make one of the hardest choices in history. Nine soldiers in ten would have been killed for momentary results. They would have hurried into France every fully trained man. They would have packed off half a million of the best of the young men of the Empire after a month's hardening in camp. They would have left the future to take care of itself. Lord Kitchener, in rejecting the lure of prompt victory, showed the sounder estimate of the enemy's resources and capacity. His decision, simple, unhesitating and vision in that man, and the world must move against its wish to the slow rhythm of his thought.—The New Republic.

Some Facts About the Province of Saskatchewan

In Area Is as Large as France and Twice the Size of the British Isles

Saskatchewan, one of the three prairie provinces of Western Canada, lies between Manitoba and Alberta. It was incorporated as a province in 1905—before that was a part of the Northwest Territories.

It has an area of over 250,000 square miles—is larger than France, and twice the size of the British Isles.

There are about 100,000,000 acres of land, of which less than 15 per cent, is actually under cultivation. The total area under crop is little more than the amount of land included in road allowances.

The elevation above sea level varies from 1,500 to 3,000 feet. Cattle range in the open in the ranching districts.

The mighty rivers of Saskatchewan are capable of developing 1,000,000 horsepower. The coal area covers about 7,500 square miles, and is estimated to contain 20,000,000,000 tons of lignite.

The estimated population is 750,000; the principal industry is agriculture. Saskatchewan is the largest wheat-producing province in the world. It produces over 700,000,000 bushels of wheat in the past six years.

The average wheat yield for the past six years (18 bushels) exceeds that for the United States for the same period by a clear two bushels per acre.

Saskatchewan farmers have won some of the biggest prizes in America for wheat growing. They include grand sweepstakes prizes at the Louisiana Show, New York, 1911, for the best wheat grown on the American continent, and sweepstakes prizes at the International Dry Farming Congress for the last three years.

The production of 1901 was 18,000,000 bushels of wheat. The production of 1911 was 330,000,000 bushels of grain.

The average mean temperature of Saskatchewan during the past ten years was 33.8 degrees. April-September, 53.1 deg.; October-March, 20.0 deg.

Saskatchewan railway construction has increased 3,000 miles since 1906. The mileage at present, over 5,000 miles.

The elevator capacity is now 60,000,000 bushels. The province has now 646,000 sheep, 775,000 cattle, 138,000 swine and 334,000 hogs.

Zeppelins Lose Immunity

British Now Know How to Deal with the Night Raider

The German dirigibles no longer can sail with impunity over any part of the British Isles they wish to visit. This situation carries an implication of importance; it is that the anti-aircraft guns of the latest type possess a range approximating the limit of a Zeppelin's power of ascension, or at least the limit of a Zeppelin's sphere of effective operation as a war engine. If such is the case, the hundreds of girls, especially, who are not time to go home, or who if they do go home, are greatly pressed for time, and who, at their disposal they will save care; they will get a thoroughly satisfying luncheon, and will enjoy the comfort of the lounge room in connection with cold days—lounge room which contains a piano, magazines and papers and in which the employees can rest for the balance of their lunch hour. The arrangements are four to cater to the appointments are harmonious; there is an air of quiet dignity about the place. Many of the employees are of the sleeping and dining car department, said that this was in accordance with the well-known policy of the C. P. R. of taking care of its employees. The people in the office constituted quite a little city in themselves. Many could not go home with convenience. This lunch room would meet the wants of many. Of course, there would be no lunch room upstairs, and the regular dining-room in which you could have what you wanted, and pay for the same as much as you liked; but this was strictly for the employees, male and female, who would prefer to have their luncheon made in the building to going to restaurants—those of them who were in the habit of going to restaurants.

Feed Plentiful This Year

Opportunity for Making Money By Feeding Grain This Winter

The live stock industry depends, of course, upon the abundance of feed available. One thing is certain: Alberta will have an abundance of feed this year, and probably there never was a year in the history of the province when the farmers of the province were going so heavily for the raising of livestock. The cattle and hogs have to a great extent been depleted during the past year, and the farmers are making every effort to increase and, this fall and winter will see great strides in this direction, as the abundance of feed will be supplemented by much green feed.

The farmers of Alberta will raise approximately 100,000,000 bushels of oats this year. There has always been much more oats than wheat raised in this district, although only about half as much in quantity was handled through the elevators as wheat. The surplus of oats is higher than for years, and the opportunity to make money by feeding the grain consequently is greater than in former years.

Life of Great Guns

The Life of Modern Artillery Pieces Is Comparatively Short

The life of a gun depends upon the progress of erosion, which sooner or later results in a loss of accuracy of fire, according to Iron Age. Erosion is caused by the action of the explosive gases at high temperature and pressure. The hot gases cause a thin film of steel to absorb heat. The film expands and becomes set. Upon the next firing, the pressure of the contracts, which causes minute cracks that grow larger with every discharge. As they increase in size they form passages for more hot gas, and that tends to enlarge them still further. The inner surface thus becomes roughened and the bore begins to corrode. Finally, the bore becomes so enlarged that it allows the gases to escape, and the gun is no longer serviceable. The shells are not then acquired its proper rotation, and its flight becomes erratic.

All guns except small ones are now constructed with liners in the tube which, when the bore is worn out, are removed and replaced by new ones. The liners are made of a material known as gun metal, which is composed of thirty per cent of the cost of the gun. There appears to be no limit to the number of times that a gun can be relined. Small guns are considered to be worn out after 5,000 rounds, and large guns after 10,000. Small naval guns can be fired about 1,000 times before they are regarded as worn out. The liners of the 14-inch naval guns are considered to have a life, on one lining, of from 150 to 200 rounds. Low velocity guns for virgin lands from which have correspondingly longer lives than high velocity guns of the same caliber. The pressure of the shell develops, and hence the temperatures are lower.

Africa a Virgin Land

Development of North African Empire Expected After the War

When the war in Europe shall have ended, the development of North Africa will bring it to a food supply for the nations impoverished by battles. There will be an immediate need for virgin lands from which huge crops may be taken at small cost, and with it will come the need for a large number of men to till the soil, says the "World Outlook."

There can be no doubt but that Europe knows where to turn for the causes of the present war is the need for richer fields for development. France, and England, and Italy, had looked across the Mediterranean to the rich lands of North Africa. Europe the making of a great North African Empire. England had looked and found Egypt. Italy had looked and found Tripoli for the Roman state.

Peace eventually would have resulted in the development of North Africa, but this war will equal a century of peace in that respect. Battered Europe, turning its empty hands toward the vast lands of the Mediterranean and the North African empire will cease to be a dream and will become a reality.

Value of Saving

Every Man Should Start a Savings Account Early in Life

The opinions of William H. Osborne, United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue, on saving are quoted in the August American Magazine.

"People get rich in two ways," he says. "The minority through skill and the majority through systematic saving of small sums. I know a man who just before he was killed in the war had saved up all he had, and went $11,000 in debt on a business deal. He gave his widow a hard chance to release herself."

"I think you can get on your feet again," she told him, "if you will."

"All right," he said, "get into the boat with me."

"And they were married."

"The husband got a place in the bank and a hole in the top of the lid. She called it her 'furniture box,' and into it went the whole lot of her money. She didn't really need. Soon she had enough to furnish a home."

"But," she said, "I was saving. She kept right on until she had $2,000. With this she bought a piece of land, which she later sold for $5,000. The fund kept growing, and the keeping making more investments. Today she has money and property in her own name valued at upwards of $40,000."

"I know of many more cases just like that. It's a law of business that invariably succeeds."

"My advice to every young man is to start a savings fund and put into it a few dollars every month. When the total runs to $500 or more he should invest it in something which brings more interest than he can get in the bank, yet is safe. If he keeps on in this way, he will be independent when he gets old enough to quit work."

Aged by the War

A dispatch from London says that the effect of the war in prematurely aging the fighting men in all the armies has led to serious scientific study of the matter. It is stated, men's hair turns grey at new months in the trenches. This is the case among both British and French soldiers, and it has been noticed that German prisoners who give their ages as between 21 and 27 present the appearance of men over 40. The fact is both curious and interesting, and it is altogether likely that the majority of these men will quickly recover and present an appearance more in keeping with their years, once they are relieved of the strain of the war. Veterans of the war at any rate, have been noted for their longevity. Witness the pensioners, notably those of the American Civil War.—Central Gazette.

OUR OBLIGATION TO OUR ALLIES AND THE SACRIFICES OF WAR

VIEW OF WHAT THE ALLIES HAVE GIVEN AND DONE

No Chapter in the History of National Friendships Has Iffed Greater Stories Than That Which Records the Reckless Sacrifices of Our Allies During the Early Period of the War

"I think that we shall never be the same people again," said Mr. Hughes, answering the first note of his well-known home. Australians may think with him, and hope with him, that we shall not. We laughed in the sun and followed our prosperous paths with cheerful and childlike arrogance. The first of our men ran bravely, even gayly, to the great game of war, hearing the trumpets and not the drums, seeing the waving banners and not the grim faces of the men. The knowledge and the pain of long endurance, sorrow and suffering have not yet reached the Australian man in this country, aloof from war yet redly streaked by war's long fire, can look back over two years without a sudden flood of almost ashamed gratitude for what other countries have done for it. When the news of war first reached this country, there were few indeed who looked forward to this time as the most glorious in the history of the world. Britain was to be the avenger. Her might, though long unused, would spring at once to full force and crush the despisers of Belgium and the ravishers of France. Those first black weeks left us gasping and reeling from a nightmare of pain. Confidence seemed on the point of giving way to terrible foreboding. Then the fulfillment of Joffre's brave plans brought a flush of hope, and after that we settled down to his grim blizzards.

In the long and unending months which followed we comprehended more and more distinctly how we were dependent upon the strength outside our own. No chapter in the history of national friendships has held greater stories than that which records the reckless sacrifices of Russia for her allies' sake. She thrust an army lance into Prussia—it was too tenderly supposed to be called a wedge—with the one purpose of lessening the terrible hammering on our weak lines in the west. The costly retreat of that army, involving the withdrawal of a line stretching north to south across the European map, shook for a moment Russia's sacrificial loyalty. Belgium and Serbia have been destroyed, France has been looted, and the great world has been torn in the vast territory of Russia and Italy has flung millions of men and money into the whirlpool of war. Each of these nations has been drawn by necessity or policy into the struggle. While that fact is plain enough, we will not attempt, merely to disguise from ourselves the circumstance that their warring has achieved our preservation.

Not a word of the great nations now linked with her, could have withstood singly the fell preparations of the Germans.

Now, in our own countries, a great measure of strength and order has been wrought out of military nothingness. Though Kitchener has gone, the British Empire is still there, and we see victory ahead of us, but we see, too, the plentiful price that has yet to be paid. Slowly we have dragged ourselves through many little discords, to unity. It is our turn and our chance to repay our great and gallant friends. To this end Britain herself has given all. Her dominions have given much. To say that Australia could give more is not to decry the nobleness and unselfishness of hundreds of thousands of brave men. Individual sacrifices have been innumerable and wonderful. Britain, in calling upon every fit man to serve his turn, has made, as a nation, the supreme sacrifice, and paid her honest debt to the men who first stood to arms. And we—alas, we are lagards—Sydney Sun.

The Voting Age

In Many European Countries the Voter Has More Restrictions Than Here

Anywhere in North America one must have lived 21 years before he can vote. Not so in many other countries.

The Hun votes at 20, but the Austrian in the other half of the empire must be 24. Prussians cannot vote until they are 25 years old, and that is the minimum age limit in a number of German states.

Twenty-five is also the age in Holland, Belgium and Japan. Denmark is a believer in the wisdom that comes with age, and there under 30 can vote. English-speaking races vote at 21.

In many countries soldiers are disqualified from voting. In the Portuguese law no domestic servant or government employee had a ballot.

Some states in Belgium, and yet that country has a peculiar system of multiple voting. College graduates, for example, have three votes, and so do others who fulfill property requirements.

About 300,000 Belgians have each three votes, and I mean that number has two votes. Failure to vote in Belgium is punishable as a misdemeanor.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

At a Woman's Problem

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and I am in better health and happier than I have been for years. The aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough.—Mrs. MARGARET GAGNEZ, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it, and they also have received similar results from it."—Mrs. GEORGE A. DUNNAN, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Elie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take a box of the compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. KISSINO, 931 East 24th St., Elie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving women's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Get it from your druggist or by mail from the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.

THE CONGESTION FROM A BAD COLD LOOSENED UP IN ONE HOUR

If Rubbed on at Night
You're Well Next Morning
Nerviline Never Fails

When that cold comes, how is it to be cured? This method is simplicity itself. Rub the chest and throat vigorously with "Nerviline." Rub it in good and deep. Lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nerviline in the water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly.

The Study of Russian

German as a language will not be popular in Canada after the war. Neither for the matter of that will it be popular anywhere else in the British Empire. Which is not to be wondered at. No doubt a certain number of people, attracted by German literature and anxious to study at first hand the amazing phenomena of the Hun mind as disclosed during the last two years, will learn German in the future. But most people will not learn it severely alone. What will take its place? Unquestionably French will be studied more than ever. But there is one language besides French which Canadian students would do well to acquire. That is Russian. After the war, Canada's trade with Russia should grow rapidly. The channels through which it will flow are now being made by the shipment of war supplies. In the future these channels will be deepened. And the need for a closer understanding between Canada and Russia will be imperative.—Vancouver World.

PERSONALS.

Ontario Women.

Chatham, Ont.—"Some time ago I had a general breakdown. It terminated in quite a bad case. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was recommended to me. I used it and received much benefit. I have taken six months I was completely cured of my ailment, and have never had any return of same. I am now taking it as a preventive of a fair trial."—Miss JOAN ACKERT, of Edgar St., Chatham, Ont.

At the first symptoms of any derangement in any period of life the use of this really helpful remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Thousands of women in Canada have taken it with unfailing success.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a true friend to women in all cases of trouble. For headache, backache, hot flashes, mental depression, dizziness, fainting spells, lassitude and exhaustion, women should never fail to take this tried and true woman's medicine.

Prepared from nature's roots and herbs, it contains no alcohol or narcotic, nor any harmful ingredient. In either tablet or liquid form, it is available at Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y., to-day for free medical advice.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Little Pills are the original and best of all. First put up over 40 years ago by Dr. J.C. Pierce, have been used without ever being equalled, as thousands attest. They're purely vegetable, being made up of concentrated and refined medicinal principles extracted from the roots of American plants. Do not go to Europe or to far-off countries for them. One or two for catarrh.

The Napoleon of the Air
Sub-Lieutenant Guyonnet, the French aviator, whose name has been famous for some time, is now the holder among the Allies. On the 17th of August he brought down his thirteenth enemy in fair fight, and not willing long to rest at the unlucky number, on the 18th he added another to the list. These exploits have now placed him ahead of his friendly rival, Lieutenant Navarre, as a "chassien de Boches," that victor having a dozen to his credit. Altogether there are now eight aviators in the French army who have won distinction of being mentioned by name in the French communiqués as having five or more victories to their credit, and these eight total 60 enemy aeroplanes and three captive balloons as their record of work.

Permanent Militarism

The Hope That the Tyranny of Organized Militarism May End

In a recent report sent to his government on the operations in France, Gen. Haig says: "To date, since July 1, the British forces alone on the Somme battle front had met and engaged 35 German divisions, of which 29 have already been defeated and withdrawn exhausted." The import of this laconic paragraph might easily be overlooked. It means that the improvised citizen army of Britain, pitted against the dragoned prodigies of the German system, has met and worsted them. The original professional British army, flung into France at the outbreak of the war, has long since vanished. The army in France and Flanders today is an army called into being by the haunts of industry and inspired, as probably no army has been inspired in the history of the world, by detestation for war.

The wait has been long. The toll has been terrific. The convulsion involved in the assembling of this citizen army has strained severely the empire's powers of adjustment. The notable fact is that the strain has not broken our force. The organization has been accomplished. England is today a hornet's nest of million-faceted industry. The citizen army, after the war, to meet the permanent needs of the world, must be fairly clearly seen to be transformed, after the war, to meet the permanent needs of the world. This means that we are in a position of clear advantage. While the whole body of German life was being corroded and brutalized by last year's militarism, our energy was left relatively clear for the prosecution of the war, and when the challenge came, we rose with the unimpeded force of a new people and met it.

Many of us may persist in the hope that this once well through with, may prove the end of the murderous business of organized warfare. But even if this hope is illusory and the end is not yet, if further generations must be made food for cannon, if mankind must waste still centuries to the chin in blood, still it is a question whether a few years' violent disruption is not better than a cynical surrender to the reign of force, than the permanent subjection of peace to war, than the submission of the world to the rigors, the brutality, the tyranny of a permanently organized militarism.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Compulsory Labor Now in Germany

The government of the principality of Lippe have issued a rescript calling upon the population to participate in the harvest and authorizing officials to resort to compulsion if necessary. The appeal, which is made to all citizens, is addressed to men as well as to women, including soldiers' wives and other recipients of government grants. Such a rescript is a remarkable fact to assist with the harvest to the best of their ability, and it is to be hoped that the further participation of the grant in question is really necessary in their case. The government of Lippe, which is a small principality, has a similar decree.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Thousands of thankful mothers throughout Canada — many of them your own neighbors — speak with the greatest praise of that splendid medicine, Baby's Own Tablets. Many mothers would never have known of the existence of this wonderful medicine for their little ones. Among these are Mrs. Albert N. St. Brueck, Sask., who says: "I have been using Baby's Own Tablets for the past seven years and they have done good to four children's world of good. I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Water for Fat Cattle

Cattle which are being fattened should have an abundant supply of fresh, clean water at all times, each animal requiring while on heavy feed approximately ten gallons of water daily. It is possible, the water should be before the cattle, so that they can help themselves whenever they wish, but where such an arrangement is impossible, they can be supplied with all the water they desire twice a day to good advantage. At the Kansas station, it was found that steers receiving a ration rich in carbohydrates drank scarcely more than half as much water as steers fed on a fully nitrogenous ration. The skillful feeder will see that his fattening animals receive all the water their appetites crave.

Think Twice Before Selling

Fable of the Man Who Did Not Want to Sell His Farm

A farmer who had decided to sell his property listed it with a real estate dealer who wrote a very good description of the place. When the agent read it over to the farmer for his approval, the old man said, "Read that again." After the second reading the farmer sat for several moments in a thoughtful mood, finally said, "I don't believe I want to sell. I've been looking for just such a place all my life and it never occurred to me that I had it until you described it to me. No, I don't want to sell."

"As a story contains a lesson for the world, the story is only fiction or an actual occurrence. Many do not appreciate their own farms until someone points out the value of the property. A real estate man has a way of describing farm or other property, bringing out the features and pointing out the desirable features in a way to give the reader a very exaggerated idea of the value of the property. It may be strictly accurate.

Canada's Semi-Centennial.

Next Dominion Day in Canada will mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of the nation. Its people are indulging in no flattering or false illusions at present; rather are they preparing to respond to further calls to sacrifice may be involved; but they would be more or less than human if they did not cherish the hope that next Dominion Day may be observed in the assurance of an established and peaceful nation.

Curbing the Submarine

When the history of this war is written there will be no more startling revelation than the success of the achievements of the British navy in dealing with the submarine. It was inevitable that at the beginning of the submarine should have had the whip hand. The bane comes before the antidote. The attack must disclose itself before the means of defence can be organized. But the reply to the submarine was found with remarkable rapidity and astonishing sureness. And with its disappearance as a capital factor in the war the British navy has been able to meet its many obligations under which it has placed the people of these islands, and has driven another nail into the coffin of Prussian militarism.—Editorial in London Daily News.

Cannon and the Clouds

Improbable That Cannonading Has an Appreciable Effect on Rainfall

By a remarkable coincidence the latter half of the year 1914, and the whole of 1915 and 1916, so far as it has gone, have shown an excessive rainfall in many parts of America and Europe, a state of affairs that has given rise to many surmises concerning the relations between the discharge of great quantities of ammunition at the front in Europe and the heavy fall of moisture. In an address delivered recently before the British Rainfall Association a member of that body pointed out that the processes of nature are so vast that it is highly improbable that even the great gunfire of recent months has had any effect on precipitation. To illustrate this statement it was shown that in one month the excess of rainfall over an area of 58,000 square miles, which includes England and Wales, was 3.12 inches. The speaker showed that this large excess represents over thirty billion tons of water and that the minimum quantity of air which must have been carried over England and Wales to transport that quantity of water must have been at least 100 times that amount in weight. Such staggering figures are regarded as evidence that the amount of force required to move masses of this magnitude is far beyond that which can be exerted even by modern nations at war.

They Learn Nothing

Why is it that the idea can never seem to be eradicated from the German mind that the world can be conquered by terror? Why is it that the dreadful lessons of the last two years remain still unlearned by the Germans?

What of good, of profit, of advantage has flowed from the two years in which Germany has but up for her sons the reputation of wild animals throughout the civilized world? Has it ruined Germany's power to conquer France, to take Verdun because German soldiers have outraged French women, slaughtered French children, entered the cathedrals, wrecked the homes, defiled the beautiful in northern France? New York Tribune.

To Deal With Deserters

Two orders-in-council have been promulgated under the law with respect to the dealing with deserters from the expeditionary forces, and with respect to seamen who refuse to obey orders or ships requisitioned for His Majesty's service. In the case of soldiers who desert or are absent without leave, it is provided that they may be summarily tried by any justice of the peace, police or stipendiary magistrate without regard to territorial jurisdiction, and sentenced on conviction for a time not exceeding two years. The production of a service roll or attestation paper purporting to be signed by the accused, and a written statement from the officer commanding a military district showing that the accused was absent from his corps, shall be deemed a sufficient proof of desertion.

No Better Protection against Worms

They heal the surfaces that have become inflamed by the attacks of the parasites and serve to restore the strength of the child that has been undermined by the draughts that the worms have made upon it, and that their operation is altogether health-giving.

Duty First

V. C. Heroes Who Belong to the Order of the Noble Living and the Noble Dead

It is a pathetic circumstance that two of the three Victoria Crosses bestowed in the award to men of the war, as an outcome of the Julian battle, pass to the families of men who did not live to receive the decoration in person. What gives the Victoria Cross its peculiar distinction among military honors is that nothing short of an absolute disregard of the risk of life establishes a title to it. It is never conferred promiscuously, and it runs no risk of being bestowed for sale with cheap jewelry in a shop window. The only price is sacrifice, and with most of the men who have won the coveted distinction it is scarcely possible that in the hour of glorious performance they gave a single thought to the reward. Nelson's heroism is hardly the less sublime if he exclaimed "Westminster Abbey or a victory!" on the eve of his death. But there is a type of man with whom the thought of glory and the instant impulse to obey the voice of Duty are strangers to each other. The vast majority of the roster of heroes who have won the emblem of Crimean cannon-metal and the Victoria Cross, the crown of the words "For Valor" have incontestably belonged to the order of the noble living and the noble dead. Editorial in Philadelphia Ledger.

Future of Turkey

Turkey must be held to a strict accountability for the monstrous atrocities which she perpetrated upon her Christian subjects. Nothing less than a total dismemberment of Turkey will appease the conscience of mankind. The world applauded Viscount Bryce when he said "If England should deliver from her prime duty of meeting out just punishment to the Turkish Government who have murdered nearly 800,000 innocent Armenian men, women and children, I shall declare war against England."

The New York Evening Sun, commenting recently on Turkey's outrageous treatment of the Armenians and Syrians, stated editorially: "Whatever any other power may win in the present conflict, there can be no two minds as to Turkey's right. By her brutality to her Christian subjects Turkey has already won the right to extinction."

That is, and should be, the verdict of civilization itself.—The New Armenia.
